ASBOG
Anderson reported on the Annual meeting which was held in November 2014 in Indianapolis, In. New York has now joined ASBOG and passed legislation regulating the profession and requiring the exams.
In an attempt to cut costs, discussion was held regarding to the Annual meeting. This meeting typically costs ASBOG approximately $90,000. Starting this year, the meeting may be held via video conferencing. In addition of cutting costs, this would allow states who have not been able to attend due to travel restrictions to participate.
Anderson also reported that Sam Christiano, who had been the Executive Director, is no longer with ASBOG. Deana Sneyd, has been named the Interim Executive Director until a permanent replacement can be hired. The ASBOG office has been moved from South Carolina to Georgia. With the above changes the executive committee has rearranged the priorities of the organization. The original purpose of ASBOG was to provide a national exam to the member states. Emphasis over the next year or so will be in increasing the number of participants at the COE Workshops and strengthening the exam.
